Walter Stewart Heads Rockefeller Foundation

Dr. Walter W. Stewart, graduate of the University, was named chairman and member of the board of trustees of the Rockefeller Foundation on April 4 to succeed John D. Rockefeller, Jr., who has reached the retirement age set by the by-laws of the Foundation. Dr. Stewart is now connected with the Institute for Advanced Study in Princeton University.

The late Ogden L. Mills, former secretary of the U. S. Treasury, once described Mr. Stewart as the country's most eminent authority on foreign exchange and gold.

He was formerly professor of economics at Amherst College, director of the division of research and statistics of the Federal Reserve Board, economic adviser to the Bank of England, and president and chairman of the board of Case, Pomeroy, Inc., in New York City. Last year Secretary Henry Morgenthau named Mr. Stewart to his emergency advisory group on fiscal matters.

Dr. Stewart was born in 1885 in Manhattan, Kan. He was educated at the University of Missouri from which he received an A.B. degree in 1909, and also at the University of Michigan and Columbia University. He began his teaching career immediately after graduating from M. U., starting as an economics instructor at the University.

Later he taught economics at the University of Michigan and at Amherst. At one time he was offered the presidency at Amherst, but he rejected it.

Dr. Stewart subsequently directed research for the Federal Reserve Board and in 1928 became adviser to the Bank of England, a post he relinquished in 1930 to become a member of the advisory committee for the Bank of International Settlements to investigate the ability of Germany to resume reparations payments under the Young Plan.

Returning to this country he became associated with Case, Pomeroy, Inc. After taking up his duties at Princeton University a short time ago he was frequently mentioned for high posts in the Treasury Department, including that of undersecretary.

While a student in the University he was a member of the Tiger track team in 1905-06, was editor of the 1908 Savitar, served as president of his sophomore class, and was elected to membership in Q. E. B. H. and in Phi Beta Kappa. His boyhood home was in Neosho, Mo.

Mrs. Stewart is the former Miss Helen Lucille Wynkoop who also graduated from the University in 1909. She received a bachelor's degree in education. They have three children: Albert, 27, Helen, 26, and Walter, 25.

New R. O. T. C. Armory Becomes Crowder Hall

Prominent military men and state officials participated in the dedicatory program May 10 in which the new R. O. T. C. armory, located on Maryland Avenue near the golf links, was named in honor of the late Maj.-Gen. Enoch H. Crowder, a graduate of the University.

Lieut.-Col. Lloyd E. Jones, commandant of the corps on the campus, presided over the ceremonies. In his address, Gov. Lloyd C. Stark dealt briefly with Missouri's share in national emergencies. He said that Missouri had noted men in all walks of life and pointed out the major role in the first World War by such Missourians as John J. Pershing, general of the armies, Admiral Koontz, chief of naval operations, and Maj.-Gen. Crowder, provost-marshal, who is noted for having devised the draft system used in the war.

President Middlebush of the University accepted the building in a short talk. Col. Jones then introduced Maj.-Gen. Robert M. Danford, chief of field artillery, who touched on the highlights in the career of Gen. Crowder. Briefly describing the rise of Crowder from a poor farm boy to the army's most brilliant military jurist, Gen. Danford said that although Gen. Crowder was an eminent Missourian, he belongs to all of the United States.

A bronze tablet was unveiled. Its text: "CROWDER HALL. This tablet has been erected by the advanced course R. O. T. C. students Class of 1940-Class of 1941 in memory of MAJOR GENERAL ENOCH H. CROWDER, Judge Advocate General U. S. A. 1911-1923, LL.B. University of Missouri 1886, LL.D. University of Missouri 1920, Commandant of Cadets, University of Missouri 1885-1889."

Below is the new R. O. T. C. armory which has been named Crowder Hall.
